Missing records in the famous "Kittrell hotel bill" incident of last fall were found in the campaign headquarters of A. O. Blalock, opponent of J. J. Brown in the race for the commissionship of agriculture, according to testimony of Miss Myrtle White at the legislative investigation of the agricultural department, at the Wednesday after-

Miss White has been executive secretary in the governor's office both during the entire administration of Governor Hardwick and during the present term of Governor Walker. She told, on the stand, the full story of the voucher issued, and later countermanded, for the bill of C. H. Kittrell at the Kimball hotel during the session of the 1922 legislature Mr. Kittrell was also a member of the state port and harbor commission, and it was under his expense account for this commission that the kotel bill for the legislative period was submitted.

Legislators Tried To Club Wall Street Into Certain "Favors," Exchange President Charges.

TO GRAND JURY

BY HARLAN S. MILLER.

New York, September 26 .- Political and financial personages alike waited with intense interest Wednesday night for a hint of the identity of the politicians who have tried to club Wall street into granting "favors" for their friends, using threats of adverse legislation as their weapons.

Reversing his determination of the previous day, when he asserted he would keep the names a secret, Seymour L. Cromwell, president of the New York stock exchange, told the grand jury Wednesday the names of the men he had alluded to in his Atlantic City speech.

Cromwell was closeted with the grand jury for two hours. When he entered he was nervous; when he emerged he was smiling.

"Did you name the legislators you accused?" he was asked. "I told every one of the names," Cromwell answered. "Mr. Pecora

WILL TEST LEGALITY OF SPECIAL ZONE LAW

Attorney for Holder of Injunction Blames Assessment Plan for Contest on Approach.

Determination to go through with the plans for the Hunter street approach to the Spring street viaduct was expressed Wednesday by members of the street committee of council and bond commission, in the race of City Attorney James L. Mayson's statement of Tuesday that he would advise that the project be dropped because opposition of property owners to the special tax schedule would make litigation over the work too costly. The blame for the property owners' fight on the approach plan was laid squarely up to the city itself by Victor Smith, attorney for objecting property owners, who said that his clients wanted the approach built but considered the prices fixed to be paid to damaged property owners in some cases were excessive, and unfair to the property owners who are to be

Instead, an ordinance was finally passed July 2, 1923, based on a committee report dated June 29, 1923, sassesing the property cowners $96,974.95, and requiring payment, or summary execution therefor.

Even at that date the needed easements had not been acquired, so that the correctness of the above assessment was unknown and unascertainable.

In figuring what would be needed the city estimated that owners of easements on certain needed strips of land would be paid such sums as these:

Taxes and Profits on Gasoline

THE use of Gasoline can not be considered a luxury. It is absolutely necessary to our present business activities. However, when the price of gasoline is discussed, it must be remembered that this commodity is being taxed in the State of Georgia possibly to a greater extent than any other commodity in general use.

The present Georgia law provides for an inspection tax of 1-2c per gallon on gasoline, and an occupation tax of 1c per gallon. On October 1, 1923, the occupation tax on gasoline will be advanced from 1c to 3c per gallon.

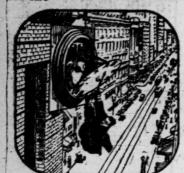

This means that on and after October 1st, next, the price at which you purchase Crown Gasoline at any of our Georgia Service Stations will include 3 1-2c per gallon, which this Company will pay the State of Georgia and which is equivalent to between 17 per cent and 20 per cent' of our sales prices. Also, these taxes are more than three times the net profit per gallon realized by this Company on its sales of Crown Gasoline in Georgia.

The motorcycle is the greatest single factor in crime suppression in America today. Ever ready, ever efficient, compact, economical and enduring, it carries the strong arm of the law to the most distant point in the shortest possible time with a minimum expenditure of effort, expense and traffic is heaviest.

The above suggestions, based upon our knowledge of what has been accomplished in other large cities, we offer in behalf of the pedestrians of Atlanta. Instead of costing the city $88,-000.00 annually, as some have stated, we can assure the taxpayers that an efficient motorcycle squad would prove more than self sustaining, and turn a profit into the city treasury from fines imposed, after paying for the motorcycles, officers' salaries, upkeep of motors, etc.

BLOCKING, JUSTICE.

The slowness of lustice-its maladministration through technicalities-was never more forcibly illustrated than in the recent granting of a rehearing by the supreme court in the case from Jenkins county of a man sentenced to life imprisonment on a jury conviction of murder.

The supreme court is not to be criticised for its decision. It interpreted the letter of the law as written; and yet such obstructions to the orderly processes of court procedure, such immunities from punishment, are causing an alarm ing increase of crime, encouraging the mob spirit, and tending to tear down the judiciary and to destroy respect for law and order.

In the case at issue where a leader of a raiding party fired into a home and killed a man, according to the evidence upon which the verdict of murder with a recommendation was returned, it appears that in the process of the trial the judge, lury and attorneys left the court room to inspect an automobile which had been offered in evidence, and which could not by the physical nature of the situation, be brought The position of City Attorney before the jury box. He declared he was perfectly willing to have the present commission referred to as "Walker's" commission, and an extra session of the general assembly, if it be called as his, for he is fixed in his purpose to bring about tax reforms.

He paid warm tribute to the members of the commission, who, he said, are serving unselfishly and at great personal sacrifice. In answer to the personal sacrifice, in answer to the call of their state.
"Until Georgia's tax system is radically changed to meet present condi-tions Georgia cannot hope to go for-ward, as outside capital will pass us by and seek investment in neighbor-ing states where something better than our broken down ad valorem system is in operation," asserted the governor.

He said it was high time half the property in the state was relieved of the whole tax burden and the other half required to carry its share. Following an interesting analysis of various tax systems by Prof. J. H. of various tax systems by Prof. J. H.
T. McPherson, member of the commission many of those present took part in a general discussion of various modes of taxation. Most members of the commission asked questions of the several speakers to develop their ideas on interesting points. Ideas advanced embraced practically every form of taxatioa, present and prospective. The income tax, the sales tax, special taxes, modification of the ad valorem taxes, and their combination with other forms, inheritance taxes and per capita taxes, were included, among those who were recognized by the chair, or who responded when called on, were D. H. Redfearn, J. W. Joiner, John D. Pope, S. S. Bennett, Representative Simpson, of Lee county. Paul J. Brown and A. J. Lippitt. Without exception, these speakers answered questions asked by different members of the commission, and many strong points were made for and against various plans.

It was generally admitted by the speakers that the present system is a failure, and that Georgia cannot hope failure, and that Georgia cannot hope to go forward unless there be radical changes that will be instrumental in overcoming present evils.

At an executive session last night, the tax commission adonted a resolution calling on the civic clubs of Georgia to devote part of all their October meetings to discussion of the state's tax problems and to give the

Of commissioners decide to apportion it among the city schools. This method of distribution of such tax money, giving the board discretion in the matter, is authorized under an amendment to the existing law in 1922, according to Virlyn Moore, former representative from Fulton county in the general assembly, who stated that the law empowers any county to levy a special school tax

Consolidation of the city and county public schools under one system will be included in the charter changes which Mayor Waiter A. Syms will advocate next year, he announced Wednesday.

Under the proposed change the system would become the Fulton county public school system and the county would have jurisdiction over the entire system through abolishment of the city board of education. One board would be elected by the county to have charge of affairs of the system and one superintendent would be named.

EDGEWOOD PAVING Child Escapes PUT UP TO COUNTY By Auto Truck GEORGE I. BETTS

A request of the county commissioners to assume the responsibility of widening and paving Edgewood average from Pryor street to North Boulevard, without cost to property owners along the thoroughfare, was voted Wednesday by the special joint committee composed of three members of the street committee of council; three broperty owners favoring the project and three opposing it.

Councilman Claude L. Ashley, chairman of the street committee of council, presided at the meeting which was held in the assembly room at the city hall.

The original proposal to widen Edgewood avenue 10 feet on either side, making it an 80-foot thoroughfare, has been pending for several months. The Wednesday afternoon meeting was the culmination of repeated efforts on the part of the committee to arrange a satisfactory plan.

Owing to the fact that Edgewood avenue continues eastward into De Kalb county and is a county highway, members of the committee expressed the opinion that the county commissioners might assume the work of widening and paving the avenue.

10 It was estimated that the cost of widening and paving the avenue.

avenue would aggregate $70,000, the committee recommending that instead of widening it 10 feet on either side that five feet from each sidewalk be utilized in the widening project.

The joint committee is composed of Councilman Claude L. Ashley, Councilman C. D. Knight and Councilman Harry York, from the street committee of city council; W. Brown Hayes, chairman of the Edgewood Avenue Improvement club; J. K. McDonald and John S. Cook, favoring the project, and J. J. Haverty, chairman of the committee opposing it, John J. Tech will be adequately prepared for Oglethorpe Saturday at Grant field.

Coach Alexander fully realizes the hreat that Oglethorpe can now exert. The school that was an infant in the ootball world about four years ago as now grown into sturdy youth. With now here a transfer and the first own of the goal line for a touchback, and Oglethorpe did not seriously threaten again.

football world about four years ago has now grown into sturdy youth. With age has come strength, endury ance and experience in a football way.

The Oglethorpe game is no longer a set-up. It is a real contest from beginning to end. In former years, the supreme pre-game question was, "How much will the score be?" Now, it is not a matter of score, it's a matter of victory. Then comes the necessity of preventing Oglethorpe from putting over a touchdown as was done in the game last season.

Tech expects to defeat Oglethorpe. That belief seems well founded enough to be accepted. But Tech is not overconfident. Far from it. Coach Alex daily outlines the dangers of taking the game too lightly. He laid particular emphasis upon the ability of Jim Robertson as a coach and leader of men, stating that Robertson was able to get the very best efforts out of his men.

History indicates that the game will be exceedingly close. Tech and Oglethorpe met for the first time in 1920. That year, largely through the magnificent attack of Captain Flowers, Tech defeated Oglethorpe 55-0. Oglethorpe succeded in making but one first down.

Petrels Cut Margin.

In 1921, the fighting Petrels cut the markin. The score that year was 41-0. Oglethorpe had a beautiful chance to score in the first few minutes of the game. The Petrels kicked

Punched, or Slotted, Golf Clubs Are Barred by U. S. Association

New York, September 26 .- The United States Golf association announced today that after January 1, 1924, all slotted or punched clubs would be barred. Stamped lines may be used if they do not exceed one-sixteenth of an inch in width and are not less than three thirty-seconds of an inch apart. All rough or raised edges must also be removed.

Clubs with slotted and punched faces, which are used to put an chos with stoted and punched laces, which are discuted by the golfing authorities of Great Britain. Discussion on the subject was held during last summer when Americans playing in tournaments in England were forbidden to use anything but smooth-faced clubs.

We talked about the books, and I said I didn't see much progress. He said. well, he'd give me some Mid-Victorian stuff to dive into for next time, and one book would do me. It was Tennyson's 'Idylls of the King'—and believe me. Joy, it let in a whole new flood of light. I'd never heard anything like it. It you read that when you're in love, it'll either make you fall out with a thump or fall in harder than ever. Could I wait until he came again! To talk over the 'Idylls of the King' with him?"

Jerry spread out her hands, then looked at them and laughed suddenly. "The never showed up. I never have seen him since. I waited that evening—God. Joy. I hone you don't know what it is to wait like that for a man who doesn't come—when you've been witing for days for that evening—and then he doesn't come—when you've bear witing for days for that evening—and then he doesn't come—when wou've bear witing for days for that evening—and then he doesn't come—wen when will even when will he shome on the waiting afterwards—to hear some explanation—some reason—watching the mail, jumping at the phone—oh, I can't go over it all again."

"Perhaps he sailed for France," Joy was thinking how versaid.

can't go over it all again!"
"Perhaps he sailed for France," Joy

"Oh, Jerry, I know there's something more to this. I know there must be some awfully good excuse."

Jerry shrugged her shoulders. "I thought so at first. When I finally came to my senses, the first thing I did was to knock the 'Idyls of the King' about the room a bit. Then the over. I didn't need any doctor to tell me it was overwork—the effect of years—I knew it myself, had known it for aforesaid years. I had to quit Charlette's, but I kept the stock. The dividends from that make my only dividends from that make my only steady income, now, and as you've noticed, I can't keep to it.

"Somehow, that day when I came to and kicked the 'Idylls of the King' about, something had snapped. I guess you can call it my sure intent."

Joy spent a short vacation with her father in Foxbollow Corners, and then fether in Foxhollow Corners, and then returned to resume her study and her rile at Jerry's. One fall day, Jerry suggested that they go to see a friend of hers, a girl who "swallows excitement down whole."

"What is she like?" Joy asked.

"She's a jellyfish." renlied Jerry.

"She's got the spine and determination of a jellyfish. Lives out here with her old great-aunt or something—But wait till you see her."

A first glimpse Felicie Durant was unforgettable. Large brown velvet eyes trimmed with elaborate fringes of Lishes that curled up at the end, giving her face a look of starry obliviant to mundane matters; a face whose ing her face a look of starry oblivian to mundane matters; a face whose daintily regular features were brought out by a skin as smooth as the surface of a pearl, with a cobwebby maze of ringlets dark as her eyes, drifting around and away from her temples.

All this Joy saw in one delighted instant. Then the lips, scarlet and full almost to pouting, parted in a smile of welcome, and Felicie waved a songy hand at the two girls.

smile of welcome, and Felicie waved a sonry hand at the two girls.

"Don't come 'too near me—I'm washing the dog."

Sure enough. There was the kitchen tub—and a little shivering white thing being drowned in suds. It was hard to connect Felicie with washing a dog, however little and white he might be might be.

"Oh you pretty—pretty—Thing."
thought Joy.
Joy and Felicie discussed a certain

"Greg," who, it seemed, wanted to marry Felicie. Felicie explained that she was "too young."

"Why—I'm only twenty! I've got at least four good years before me of fun and excitement, the best years of my life, and looks, and why should I

JUST NUTS

By Harrington Hext. devote them to being domestic? After I'm married. I can never have the kind of a good time I have now. I may be fonder of Greg than anyone—but I'm fond of other men, too! I like the excitement of each new man."

Left alone in the apartment that night, Joy went to the piano and started playing the score of Faust.

The sharp ringing of the door bel! interrupted and she went to the door with a feeling of irritation. Who—

A tall, brown figure, somewhat leaner and older looking. Eyes that were clear— "Grant!" she cried. With no more thought than a snow-flake takes to melt, she was in his arms, and their lips met in a kiss that stopped and sighed, then began again.

"We'd better close the door," said
Grant. In the little pause while he preserved appearances by shutting them in the apartment she put her self away from him, a little breath-less, her hair slipping down about her shoulders. "What made me do that?" she

"'Listen here,' I said. 'I may be a cabaret girl, but I'm not several other little things you seeem to think I am. I've got 'honor and truth and a sure intent,' which is more than you'll have if you follow up your intent with me."

"'Did you say "honor and truth and—?"

"I did,' said I. So come to and stay there. 'I never made a mistake like this before,' he said. 'I think I had better go."

"I lost my head then. 'Sit down,' I said and I told him all about it. I saw he'd lost most of his edge.

"I want to beg your pardon,' he said. 'Of all girls in New York—to stumble on one who remembered something I said!"

"What made me do that?" she trembled.

"Joy—" The living room gained, he had come up to her again and was stroking her hair. "Darling—I want you to marry me just as soon as you can."

With a hissing intake of breath she drew away from him, putting the table between them.

"Grant, you've come back too late! I've learned to do without you."

He made an impatient motion as if to brush her words away. "Do you expect me to believe that—after what happened a minute *260?"

"That—is what helped me to see! I don't think—I ever was really in love with you. It was infatuation—or else—how could I have done what I did just now. I haven't missed you—except when I was idle."

Mesmerized by the finality of her tone, he started to the door, but stopped halfway. "Am I to believe—

"Perhaps he sailed for France," Joy said.

"I thought of that, of course. But he had told me that another thing that the beauty of the sail that another thing that the sail that the sa made him so sick was being stuck permanently on this side as far as he could see. But whatever happened, to go off without a word—without a word—without a word—without a word—without a leikes for nearly an hour.

Brilliant Dances Mrs. Bayly Gives Bridge Party at Fort McPherson

By Nine O'Clocks

Indications are that the dances to be given by the Nine o'Clocks this season at the Piedmont Driving club on Thanksgiving eve and New Year's eve will be of greater brilliancy than ever before, according to plans formulated at the meeting of officers and executive board of this organization Wednesday evening at the Piedmont Driving club.

These dances are important events of the social season to which the younger society contingent is keenly anticipative.

Members enjoyed a swim in the club's pool preceding the meeting Wednesday, which was later followed by a buffet supper and dance, which closes the season at this club.

I have recommended the Vegetable Compound ever since, and if you could see me now you would think I had always been well."—Mrs. MARY F. HERRICK, 234 Detroit St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire reproductive system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intends.

"They All Love Its Taste"

Protect Young Teeth From Grit

The teeth of every girl and boy deserve a fair show. Modern Dental science has shown that proper care of children's teeth builds eager active minds and sturdy bodies.*

Here are precautions thoughtful mothers should take:

First, choose a safe dentifrice—one that contains no grit, for grit scratches tooth enamel.

Second, avoid preparations containing strong drugs and harsh chemicals which may injure the enamel and delicate mouth tissues.

Third, teach regular brushing of the teeth after meals and at bedtime.

Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream is safe for it contains no grit or harmful ingredients. It is a double action dentifrice; 1-its specially prepared chalk loosens clinging particles; 2-its mild vegetable-oil soap gently washes them away. Because of its delicious taste, children use Colgate's regularly and willingly.

A tube for each member of the family is a sound investment in sound teeth. Large tube - 25c.

Mrs. Richardson Issues Card Concerning State Directorship

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson has supplied The Constitution with the following formal statement:

"I am sorry that my copy of telegram from Mrs. Winter's secretary, Mrs. Bogle, was misconstrued. Of course a trained club woman knows better than to ask any president of her organization to endorse her for anything. My telegram to Mrs. Winter was based on our close personal friendship, and simply read, 'would I be acceptable to you.' Mrs. Bogle, the secretary, knowing Mrs. Winter's love for me had no hesitancy in wiring the answer published. The whole matter was purely personal, published as such, and I am perfectly sure no trained club woman in the state could have misunderstood.

A YOUTHFUL STYLE.

4079. Here is a new and very unique version of the one-piece dress. Belt portions over which the tab extensions on front and back are fastened, hold the fulness gracefully at the sides. Added width is given to the skirt portion by plaits that form a panel over back and front. This is a good model for gingham, and also for the new tub silks in check and stripe patterns. Organdy or linenmay be selected for trimming. The sleeve is cool and pretty in the short length, and in wrist length it is the latest style feature.

The pattern is cut in three sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. An 18-year size requires 5 yards of 32-inch material. The width of the dress at the foot with plaits extended is 2 3-4 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps. Send 12c in silver or stamps for our up-to-date fall and winter 1923-1924 book of fashions.

Larry Claims His Own.

Gloria walked wearily into the hotel. Life seemed a drab thing. She wondered who she wanted to go on with it. No Larry, and—wondered who she wanted to go on with it. No Larry, and—"Hullo, Gloria!" She looked up as quickly as if an electric shock had run through her. It was Larry himself!

"Come over here and talk to me a minute, won't you, please?" he urged, and Gloria, blissfully happy, followed him to where two big chairs stood in a corner.

The lobby was almost empty. The girl at the cigar counter was yawning over a magazine; the bellboys were surreptitiously shooting craps. A man "Oh, Larry! ing over a magazine; the bellboys were surreptitiously shooting craps. A man with a vacuum cleaner was going over the huge rugs wearily. A fire engine tore through the street outside, its siren screaming a warning; another followed it, and through the open window Gloria got a glimpse of the firemen struggling into their coats and conning their helmets. The city's din had softened to a low, steady roar, from which individual noises rose, only to subside again.

'Oh, Larry! And I called you up, and you weren't in, and then I went out and bought a ticket home. And—but you let that actress kiss you, last night," she reminded him.

"I didn't let her; she did it—she always does. Her husband and I are old friends, and they'd had a quarrel and I'd patched it up," he answered. "But Gloria, what about things here at the hotel. Did you get the money in time?"

only to subside again.

"Gloria, let's get things straightened out," Larry began, dragging his chair closer to hers. "First, are you really engaged to Frank Carver?"

"Oh, you did see that notice, then!" she cried. "No, I'm not. Virginia accused me of being in love with her husband, and I told her that I wasn't at all—and then, to convince her, I said that I was engaged to Frank Carver; he had proposed to me, so it wasn't as much of a lie as it might have been!"

"Then—you're not going to marry How much was it?"

But Gloria, what about things here at the hotel. Did you get the money in time?"

"Money?" Cold fear gripped her at heart. "Oh, Larry, Morton Phelps didn't ask you for money, too, did he?"

"Why, he said that you couldn't pay your hotel bill and were just about to be ejected, and I gave him some for you—not an awful lot. Don't look so worried—and I wondered if you needed some more."

"Give me your check book," she demanded. "I wonder how many more people dear Morton has appealed to. How much was it?"

"The Misleading Lady."

At The Lyric.

Atlanta theater-goers apparently have become more interested in "The Misleading Lady," the Forsyth players' offering for the week at the Lyric theater, than in any play of recent months. The frank handling of a vital theme in a clever and entertaining way has put the play over with a bang and resulted in constantly growing crowds. A modern girl uses the lure of her sex to lead a man into proposal. Asserting that man has as much right to use his natural heritage of muscle power as a woman has to use her natural heritage of sex lure, the man abducts the woman and holds her a prisoner until he wins her outspoken love. The comedy incident to the development of the romantic and adventurous plot has kept audiences in continuous laughter. acting of the stars is exceptionally good. New York, September 26.—Overnight sentiment in regard to the price of cotton favored purchases. When this is considered in conjunction with report of a storm headed towards the South Atlantic and gulf states, and the weather bureau ordering storm warnings for the Atlantic coast, the sharp rise in today's cotton market should have been no surprise. Towards the market closing there was a rush to liquidate and this caused the loss of about 30 points from the day's highs. over August. Say there are 25 working days in September, the improvement for the month would then be less than 100,000 tens. Since the decrease in unfilled tonnare for August was over 400,000 tons, the improvement is only moderate, and another decrease in forward business can be expected for September in spite of some falling off in operations.

On the whole we do not believe the September improvement in business is as much as can be expected and that favor alone is what the matter is with the stock magket. BANGE IN NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

New York. September 26 .- The first tropical storm of the season seemed to be responsible for a sharp rally in the cotton market today. After selling at 27.85 early December dvanced to 28.58 or 65 points net mon closing at 28.25. The general market closed barely steady at net

These offerings were readily absorbed, however, and the market soon turned firm on apprehensions that the storm development would bring rains to the eastern belt. This idea was strengthened by the official eastern belt forecast for unsettled weather with rains in south Georgia and the Carolinas and local traders who study crop conditions closely feared that low harometer readings in the west would also bring rain to the western belt. For a time the market showed considerable strength on this view of the weather outlook, selling up to 28.09 for October and 28.12 for January during the early afternoon or about down to 28.27 and January to 27.38 a time the market showed considerable strength on this view of the weather outlook, selling up to 28.90 for October and 28.12 for January during the early afternoon or about 57 to 68 points net higher. This advance seemed sufficient to bring out realizing and there was some scattered selling late in the afternoon on rumors of an easier spot basis in the southwest, last prices showed reactions of some 30 to 40 points from the best. HEALTHY GAINS
AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Oleans, September 26.—The outstanding feature of the day in the cotton market was the heavy buying that started when it looked as if the storm in the West Indies was about to move through the Florida straits and into the Gulf of Mexico. The buying movement continued and then after reports were received which indicated that the disturbance was moving up along the Atlantic coast rather than toward the gulf, and at the highest it had prices 62 to 66 points higher than the close of yesterday. the gulf, and at the highest it had prices 62 to 66 points higher than the close of yesterday. In the late trading early buyers took profits and caused moderate recessions from the highest, the close showing net gains on the day of 35 to 43 points. October closed at 27.91 cents a pound, after having traded as high as 28.10. In the early session the tene was nervous, prices first bulging moderately on good cables and then falling to levels 7 to 12 points under the final prices of yesterday on selling for both accounts. On this break attention was directed to the West Indian storm and a strong and excited market resulted. At the helght of the buying movement it was market comment that large lines of long cotton sold out at the end of last week were being replaced.

Weekly crop and weather reports were considered rather mixed: some traders called them favorable for this time of the year, but this resulted in but little selling. Two private crop reports were issued, one of 49.7

Reports from East Point on Wednesday were to the effect that sentiment in favor of annexation to Atlanta, which issue will be decided by the voters of that suburb Tuesday, was rapidly growing and that leaders of the campaign were confident that during the remaining days before election the rest of the opposition sentiment will be largely overcome.

Three suburban towns, East Point, College Park and Hapeville, are to vote on the annexation question Tuesday, but it is in East Point that the chief interest of the campaign centers. Sentiment in favor of annexation is said to be overwhelming in both College Park and Hapeville. East Point, however, holds the geographical key to the situation, inasmuch as it lies between the other two towns and Atlanta and, if annexation is defeated in East Point, the issue will be lost in all three places regardless of how the other two vote.

Atlanta citizens anyious to well. Atlantans Helping.

Atlanta citizens, anxious to wel-come as fellow Atlantans the resi-dents of the three towns, are aiding uents of the three towns, are aiding all they can in the campaign work.
The chamber of commerce, through Tom Connelly, chairman of the extension committee, is taking on a statethe question anxious to see the sister corporations students would register today and become part of the great city, and, if this sentiment has not been extravagantly expressed so far, if is because it was felt to be so well known that Dr. C. Business Opposition. In fact, the opposition, it is stated in fact, the opposition, it is stated, is practically confined to a few business interests in East Point who are opposing annexation solely for selfish reasons. And this opposition is by no means solid. For instance, Willard Scay, of the Dixie Metal and Culvert company, one of the largest manufacturing plants in the Atlanta district, located in East Point, has district, located in East Point, has been one of the most active workers for annexation.

Atlanta's "Suburban Reporter,"

Athens, Ga., September 26 .- Be-Atlens, Ga., September 20.—Belated arrivals at the University of Georgia this week are pushing the enrollment far above the record set with the close of the first week of registration Saturday, and officials of the institution have renewed their prediction that when all the students who expect to attend the university. who expect to attend the university have enrolled, the total number in attendance will be in excess of 1,500.

At noon Saturday, when the first week of registration came to a close. there were 1.252 students' names of the books, and at the close of the first week last year there were only 1,146. In other words, to date there is an increase of 107 students in the enrollment at the state univer-

Washington, September 26.-Der cratic senators returning from Europe are convinced that the League of Nations will live, but are ready to drop it as a campaign issue in 1924.

The American people are so prejudiced against the league that it will be some years before they will consent to listen open-mindedly to the case for the league. Therefore, it behoves the democratic party to drop the question for the present, and wait for vindication in the years to come. This, in brief, is the attitude of the leaders of the party who have been to Europe, looked into the work-

PEACHTREE ROAD LOTS IN GREAT DEMAND

PEACHTREE is the "Main Street" of the south and is as well known as any street in the world.

It is lined with handsome homes and you run no risks in locating your residence there.

Desirable lots are getting scarcer every day and the prices are advancing so rapidly that even though you are not yet ready to build the increase in value will far more than offset the cost of carrying.

We offer a splendid building site 100x300 with east front, beautifully wooded and ideally located.

Is specially priced for a few days and you will do yourself a favor by inquiring of us concerning this.
